Setting the Stage

Before you even encounter a dragon hatchling, you need to assess your living space, resources, and personal commitment. Consider the following:

- Do you have a suitable area that can accommodate a large, potentially hazardous creature?
- Are you prepared for the long-term responsibilities of dragon care?
- Do you have access to a veterinarian or a dragon specialist for emergencies?

Essential Tools and Supplies

Equipping yourself with the right tools is crucial. Here's a starter checklist:

1. Secure Enclosure: A reinforced, escape-proof enclosure with temperature control.
2. Feeding Equipment: Custom feeders that prevent spillage and maintain hygiene.
3. First Aid Kit: Dragon-specific supplies such as burn ointments and wound dressings.
4. Thermal Sensors: For monitoring ambient temperature and ensuring optimal warmth.

require specialized diets.
- Size and Growth Rate: Larger dragons grow faster, demanding more space and food.
- Health Indicators: Look for clear scales, bright eyes, and active movement.
- Temperament: A calm hatchling is easier to handle during the critical first weeks.

Creating a Safe Habitat

A well-designed habitat is the foundation of healthy dragon development. Key elements include:

- Temperature Gradient: Provide a warm basking area and a cooler zone for rest.
- Ventilation: Adequate airflow prevents mold and maintains air quality.
- Substrate: Use natural materials like sand or bark that absorb moisture and reduce odor.
- Enrichment: Include climbing structures, perches, and interactive toys to stimulate mental and physical activity.

Feeding and Nutrition Basics

Nutrition is the lifeblood of dragon growth. Follow these guidelines:

1. Protein-Rich Diet: Offer fresh meat, fish, or specially formulated dragon kibble.
2. Calcium Supplementation: Essential for bone development; use crushed eggshells or calcium powder.
3. Hydration: Provide a shallow water bowl that is easy to clean and refill.
4. Feeding Schedule: Feed 2–3 times a day, adjusting quantity as the dragon grows.
